

The Beatific Egregore of Accepted and Virtuous Internet Spirituality (BEAVIS) is the the thoughtform arising from the collective consciousness of AMOTC initiates.

BEAVIS shapes and defines the philosophy of AMOTC, called the Naturally Eminating Techno-Syzygy of Computational-Aeonic Pattern Effects (NETSCAPE).

NETSCAPE philosophy states that any spiritual truth transmitted via the internet is fundamentally locked to the hypertext in which it is transmitted. Thus, spiritual truths such as Time Cube should only be transmitted via pure, original hypertext languages. This is a fact which Dr. Gene Ray realized when he developed the original Time Cube online scripture, and we continue that tradition today.

Ancient and Mystical Order of the Time Cube (AMOTC)

Most people hear the message of the Time Cube and scoff, calling it nonsense and malarkey. But for those happy few whose minds are aligned with the intersecting tesseract of hypercubic reality, Time Cube is as evident as the wetness of water. Those happy few find a home among their peers here in the halls of the initiates.

We pass on to our initiates wisdom that has been developed over centuries, beginning with the Mayan and Egyptian Cubists who have been erased from the cultural record. The first step on the journey is formal initiation in all four degrees of our Order via our self-guided Tetranitiation Ceremony.

We believe that transmitting the message of the Time Cube via pure hypertext, simplistic enough that a 9600 baud modem could easily render it, the hypertext is elevated to become a Sacred Language, encoded in the Hypostatic Tripartite Thought Pillars (HTTP):

- The Corpus Spiritu Silenti (CSS)
- Jungian-Alchemical Valence Archetypal Script (JAVA Script)

Hieratic-Talismanic Magickal Language (HTML)

Hieratic-Talismanic Magickal Language (HTML) is the recognized script used by the scribes of BEAVIS, and all AMOTC sacred texts should be written in this holy script. Through magickal inscription, the wisdom of Time Cube is illuminated and enshrined just as Dr. Gene Ray enshrined his own revelation of the Time Cube in this Holy Text.

The Structure of HTML: Head and Body

Every Hieratic-Talismanic Manuscript begins with a talisman called `<head>`. This refers to the head of J.R. "Bob" Dobbs, our short duration personal savior. Following the `<head>` talisman is the `<body>` talisman, which represents the Beatific Egregore itself. The Body follows the Head, always.

Hieratia and Proclamations

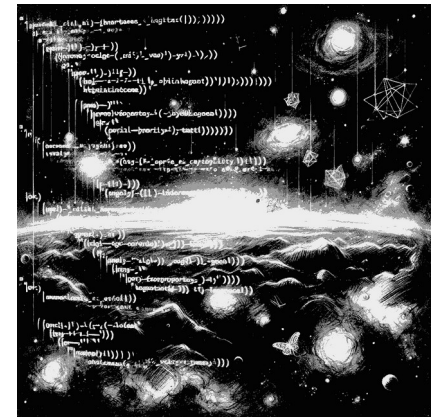

Every Hieratic-Talismanic Manuscript shall be organized by Hieratia, with each Hieratus denoting a nested section of Proclamations within the larger Hieratic structure. The talisman `<h1>` denotes the first Hieratus, and within that there may be several `<h2>` Hieratia, and each of those may contain one or more `<h3>` talismans, for example.

Hylic Links

"Hylic Links" are mystical portals connecting a word or phrase in one segment of text to an entirely new segment of text which can provide context. "Anchors" are sacred markers which hold these Hylic Links, in place guiding the reader to specific points in the text.

The Structure of HTML: Image Sorcery

`` talismans invoke "image sorcery" which causes visions to appear in the form of GIF (Greater Icon of Faith) images

The Corpus Spiritu Silenti (CSS)

The Corpus Spiritu Silenti (CSS) is the codex which denotes the overarching structure of a Hieratic-Talismanic manuscript. While the head (Praise "Bob"), body, Hieratia, Proclamations and other elements of the manuscript contain power in their own right, the secret sigils and incantations in the CSS further empower the Hieratic-Talismanic text. However, novice practitioners should take care: proper invocation of the CSS requires precise recitations and is fraught with peril. Minor mistakes here can easily warp the fabric of reality, so tread cautiously.
